2. Please use this URL (<https://www.kaggle.com/c/dogs-vs-cats-redux-kernels-edition/overview>) to participant the competition.
3. After submit you results, use screenshot to show you score (see image below). They don't provide ranking for this competition anymore. Thus, no need to show your ranking at Public/Private Leaderboard.

The screenshot shows the Kaggle submission page for the "Dogs vs. Cats Redux: Kernels Edition" competition. The page header includes the competition title and a description: "Distinguish images of dogs from cats". Below the header, there is a navigation bar with tabs: Overview, Data, Notebooks, Discussion, Leaderboard, Rules, Team, My Submissions, and Late Submission. The "Late Submission" tab is selected. The main content area displays "Your most recent submission" with a table of submission details. The table has columns for Name, Submitted, Wait time, Execution time, and Score. The submission "sampleSubmission.csv" is listed with a score of 17.28320, which is circled in red. A green bar at the bottom of the table indicates the submission is "Complete".
